Pulling together a commemorative publication like this one has been a major production which even we did not envision. It took on a life of its own with demands from its compilers which could not be denied. Every time a leader from the past was found, a document or photograph uncovered, or a remembrance received, we were rewarded for our efforts. We hope PER members, past, present and future will be enlightened by this historical keepsake.

This project would not have been possible without assistance from many within oil company libraries, within the Division, within SLA and outside of our profession who assisted with locating people, photographs and articles. It is impossible to acknowledge all who assisted, but there are some who deserve special mention because their contributions have been extraordinary. Kathryn Dorko, SLA, never failed to be cheerful when looking for just one more person or one more report, frequently adding extra time to a long day. Special thanks to PER Division Archivist, Jan Heagy, who supported us enthusiastically by constantly checking on details. (The documents we have gathered should greatly enhance PER's Archives) A trio of EXXON librarians, Judy Krieg, Lou Parris and Bethany Picard proved to be exceptionally helpful in providing clues and addresses in the quest for PER leaders from the Thirties through the Sixties. We cannot fail to acknowledge the support, understanding and patience of two husbands named John who put up with a lot of schedule shifting during these early months of 1993.

A special thank you to Chevron Services Company, who, in addition to supporting PER member employees over the years, has contributed to this publication by supporting telephone calls, photocopying, mailings and many faxed messages between San Francisco and Colorado.

The Petroleum and Energy Resources Division acknowledges with thanks the sponsorship of this historical keepsake by Petroleum Abstracts, whose history is interwoven within our division history. We are grateful to have had the support of this organization for many years and are pleased with the continuing service it provides our industry and our profession.

Thanks to all of you who contributed to bring reality to this vision of the past.
