

Laura Bush

June 8, 2009

Congratulations to the Special Libraries Association on celebrating 100 years of serving libraries and information professionals!

Libraries are beacons of knowledge that fuel business, scholastic and creative pursuits around the world. For a century, the Special Libraries Association has provided educational and networking opportunities that empower its members to share the latest technology and resources with their patrons. As a former librarian, I am grateful to organizations like yours that encourage people of all ages to make learning a lifelong process.

You have my best wishes for your continued success!

Sincerely,

Laura Bush